Combating Dental Anxiety

If you have put off making that call to the dentist because of a real dental fear you’re not alone. Some put it off so long they add embarrassment to the pile of reasons not to call. It happens so often that we get several calls a week with patients that would only pick up the phone because of the severe toothache pain. Don’t let this be you.

If you’re nervous about sitting through a lecture on the importance of regular checkups, you can stop worrying. We are not here to point fingers. Trust us, we have seen it so many times, we know dental fear is real and we just want to help.

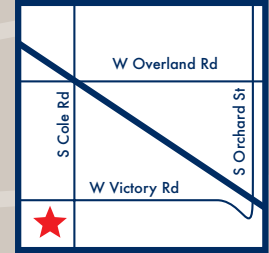

If you suffer from dental anxiety, we have some good news! There’s a whole list of things we can do to help you relax.

1. Tell us! Don’t silently suffer in the chair. Often, just being aware, we can avoid or talk you through things that bring anxiety.
2. We offer nitrous (laughing gas).
3. Prescribed oral medication can help relax and calm an anxious patient.
4. Cuddle up in a blanket and tune out to a movie or music (available in each room).
5. Just raise your hand if you feel you need a break.

We want to do what we can to ensure you have a positive experience. In fact, this month we are throwing in a new discount, just to off balance the pile of reasons you create to not call. We are calling it the “Dental Survivor Discount”. For a limited time receive 15% off on top of your other discounts for an exam, x-rays and cleaning if you have not seen the dentist for two years or more. Be a survivor - call today!
