General Dentistry

Dear Patient,

Today we placed a crown or a bridge in your mouth. We are proud of our work. We consider it our responsibility to see that the quality of your dental work is no less than that which we would demand for ourselves.

A quality staff, a quality dental laboratory, quality materials, and a quality physical facility all combine to assure that the preceding goal is met.

Even though all of the above are true, the longevity of the dental work depends on your home care. There is nothing we do that can't be undone by a poor home care program.

Certainly it is our responsibility to see that the technical requirements of your dental work are fulfilled, but the care of that work on a day-to-day basis must be the patient's responsibility. We will encourage you and show you how this should be done.

The lasting quality of your work has great meaning to all of us. It is meaningful to you from a standpoint of health, cost and time. It is meaningful to us because of genuine concern, reputation, and pride.

Remember to care for a tooth with a crown or a bridge the same as you would a normal tooth. That entails flossing, brushing, finger-thumb massage and the daily use of a flouride rinse.

We are always here to help!

Sincerely,

Steve

Scott
